Newly Opened ExhibitionsLucian Freud: 'New Perspectives'

National Gallery - 1 Oct 2022 - 22 Jan 2023

The National Gallery is flirting dangerously with modern art in this sweeping celebration of twentieth-century art superstar Lucian Freud. Featuring major works from throughout his career – everything from early works like 'Girl With Roses' through to famous later nude portraits – this is promising an in-depth, analytical look at one of our most famous artists.

Cézanne

Tate Modern - 5 Oct 2022 - 12 Mar 2023

Paul Cézanne is one of the true giants of art history. His loose, radical, obsessive approach to painting paved the way for modernism and abstraction, and continues to shape art today. This huge, ambitious show promises to look at every aspect of his varied career, from his still lifes, his bather paintings and his repeated return to his native Aix-en-Provence to paint Mont Sainte Victoire over and over again. Beautiful, revolutionary art.

Damien Hirst: 'The Currency'

Newport Street Gallery, Vauxhall - 9 Sept 2022 - 21 Jan 2023

The naughtiest boy in all of art returns, and this time he's setting paintings on fire. It's all part of his latest project, 'The Currency', which involved creating 10,000 little primary coloured dot paintings, and 10,000 corresponding NFTs. Collectors then had the option of keeping the NFT and destroying the physical artwork, or vice versa. If you chose NFT, your £20,000 painting is going to be torched, live in the gallery, during the run of this exhibition. Silly? Yes. But offensive? Also yes.
